ORIGINAL POETRY.

TO ELLEN. And shall I not, while others sing Their praise to thee in kindred feeling, My humbler strain of friendship bring, Around thy sorrows gently stealing.

For thou art worthy of the song, Which still to loveliness is due, And more since undescrived wrong, Hath dared thy footsteps to pursue.

Might sciendship pour its heaping balm, To southe the sorrow's of thy breast, And spread around a cheerful calm, Such as await the pure and blest.

Could my poor strain to Ellen's heart. Reveal a blithe and sunny ray, One solitary charm impart, To drive its sorrowing throbs away

Oh, I would oft and gladly sing, Full well repaid if song would being, To Ellen's heart one cheerful boom.

Then child of poery and of serrow.

Is with sweet pensiveness refined, And well the stades of ill can borrow

But ah ' not fancied ill's alone. Invade thy hear and wet thy cheek, For in thy harp's nelodious tone, Far other grief and sorrows speak.

But cheer thee Illen, hope shall smile, And happier noments yet be thine, The gentle spirt peace beguile, And friendship glow with charms divine. April, 1925.

> BEAUTY. Like a star in the sky, When the evining is clear, la he glittering eye Of fair Beauty so dearand the dew-drop descending On the lily and rose, Resembles the soft blending Of the tear as it flows.

Like the sun sinking low, O'er the mountains afar, As he leaves his red glow, Underneath the bright star, Is the deep blush of beauty. When the virtuous dart, Por a breach in her duty, Plunges deep in her heart. Like Aurora so gay, When behind the white cloud, Opes the flood gates of day, O'er the night's sable shroud, Does the smile of the Graces, The fair dimples illume, And affection crases Sorrow's midnight of gis om. Like the billow when tost By the rude blast of air, And the mariner lost In the gulph of despair,

Is the bosom when sighing O'er the love that is past, And distraction densing Dearest hope to the last.

Like a Natad when seen Thro' the smoothe lucid wave; Like a sea-monarch's queen In her coralline cave. Is the form, look and stature, Veil'd in virtue's fair fame, Lovely woman by name.

THE TUNNEL OF THE THAMES The following is an extract from one of the letters written by Mr. Carter, one of the editors of the Statesman, who is making the tour Loxuox, Are. 15, 1325. -On our way back from Greenwich to town, we visited the Tra-fiel of the Thames, on its right bank, half a mile below London bridge. The work is now in progress; but, in my chinion, it is among the widdest projects of a speculating age, and will never succeed, although an abaken confidence in the undertaking is exage, and will never succeed, attendigh an unlashed confidence in the undertaking is expressed by the company and their agents, who have already expended a large sum of money. I would as soon think of digging for Captain Kidd's pots of gold, as of excavating a road for carriages, under the bed of the Thames; and indeed there is a strong resemblance between these visionary adventures.—The first intimation of our approach to the scene of operations was a terrent of maddy water, sufficient to turn a mill, pouring from the bank into the river. After treading haif a dozen darty alleys, and of course paying a slalling each for a sight, we were, by special favor, permitted to mount the scaffolding, where a large steam engine is at work in raising mud and water, and to descend by a ladder into the abyas below. The circular and perpendicular well is fifty feet in diameter, and seventy feet deep, with its sides walled up with brick. Its shaft has already been sunk to the depth that was contemplated, which is thirty five or forty feet below the bed of the river. The workmen are next to grope their way in a horizontal direction, securing the passage as they proceed by aches, models of which were pointed out to us. This subterranean roat, should it ever be completed, is to be splendidly lighted with gas. It would startle Sir James Thornhill's River ends and Nervids, should they see lights flashing, and bear the rumbling of carriages over pavements so far beneath their green abodes.

Since this letter was commenced, there has seen a rumor in the city, that a shocking ac-cident has happened at the shaft, by which a xty or seventy workmen had lost their lives; but one of the evening papers states, on au-thority of the clerk of the company, that the report is whelly without foundation. It is, however, not improbable that some accident of the kind may occur in the progress of the work, as the ground through which the excatation is made, is by no means firm. Several men were killed in the first attempt to construct a work of the same descrip

After the national salute from Fort La Fayette, at thirty minutes past eleven o'clock, a repeating gun was fired from Fort lichmond, and followed at Governor's island and at the Battery, at thirty-one minutes past eleven o'clock, and the firing was then continued up the river.

Thus, in the short space of eight years, has a mighty work here accounting the same parallel to the enterprize and industry of our citizens. Perhaps no state in the union, at least none of the old states, contain a mighty work been accomplished by New-york, unaided and alone, which will for ages stand high in rank among the wonders of the which is susceptible of the highest state of world.

GREEN-ROOM INTELLIGENCE.

It is the intention of Messrs. Warren and Wood to make considerable alterations in the Theatre before the commencement of the season for Theatrical performances. The whole of the front boxes are to be thrown open and to form a part of the pit; the pit is to be raised so as to make the front seats much better the pit is the part of the pit. general placidity in the expression of the general placidity in the expression of the general placidity in the expression of the general area of deep redection that does not, however, approach tolab stration. There is a pleasant but not very animated smile, and if any feature were to be acleeted as indicative of the greatness of his mind, it would be the eye, though were he and ordinary man even that would not be considered remarkable. The general area of manner, however, in which there is more of sancerity than elegance, is adapted to inspire even involuntary respect, and at the same time puts the most timid entirely at ease in his presence.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamblin, recently arrived at New York, from England, are to be engaged at the Park Theatre, after the termination of the present engagement with Cooper and Conpresent engagement with Cooper and Con-way. Persons who have seen Mr. Hamblin in London, say that in genteel comedy he is a performer r sing far above mediocraty. He is a gentleman of considerable personal brau-ty and elegance. His la ty also possesses su-perior dramatic talents in a similar line of act-ing, and report says, of equal grace and beau-ty with her husband. We may expect that they will visit our city, as soon as the theatre one is.

they will visit our city, as soon as the theatre opens.

The Lafavette Circus, New-York, is to be converted into a regular theatre. Such will actually be the case after the Grand Celebration Ball, which takes place on the 4th of November. It is then intunded to get up several dramatic exhibitions at this place, exceeding any thing which has yet appeared in this country. The Battle of Waterloo is seriously taiked of, in anich will be in reduced eighty five horses, fifty of which will be at one time parading the immense stage, and the remaining thirty five standing at rest, distributed over the back ground.

The New York Evening Post says: we understand that the estate known by the name of the old Bull's Head, in the flowery, was sold a few days since, for $105,000.—

The Passinexe of the United Sates left New York on his return to Washington, on Saturday. The evening previous to his departure, he attended the Park Theatre.

"A box had been tastefully decorated for his use, with American flags. Next to this (says the Commercial Advertiser) a hox was (says the Commercial Advertisor) a box was also appropriated to the Corporation. The Theatre was of course filled to overflowing. The President, accompanied by the Committee, entered his box at half past seven.—He was received by long, continued, and hearty cheers, which for a time drowned the national "Harl Columbia." During this time the President stood forward, an I repeatedly bowed to various parts of the house. The excelling entertainments were the "Harber of the part of the p seven by serious parts of the force. The exceing's enterta ments were the "Barber of Seville," and the "Vision of the Sun." At the moment the President entered, Barnes, as Dr. Bartolo, was in his best humor, and Miss Kelly, as Rosina, was playing to the life. But, for a few mo nents, the immitable drolleey of the one, and the case, spirit, and grace-fulness of the other, were alike forgotten.— All appeared rejoiced to behold the Chief Ma-gistrate of the first republic in the world, and cultivation, but which remains unimproved, and comparatively a waste, constitutes a proportion, which, if correctly known, would ex cite no small share of surprize and regret .-

And what can be the cause ! while thousands of industrious and Liberious cultivators are emigrating from other sections of our coun try, and peopling the wilderness of the west with a harrly, useful and profitable race, why are the woods of our state overlooked, and its fertile forest ground passed by for a more distant region? Are not our laws as just and equitable? Are they not as favourable to adventurers, and will not the labourer as certainly reap the reward of his exertions here as elsewhere? And is not our climate as mild harvests of other sections? Why then are our solitude reign where the hum of industry should long since have prevailed, and its gradual but steady advancement have been acknowtedged in the increase of population, the spread of farm houses, mills, schools, churches, and the erection of villages and towns? These are questions which naturally suggest themselves to the mind, and are susceptible of ready explination - there must be some cause why one section of country should be prefer-ed to another; why one tract of forest should offer stronger inducements to the cultivator, than another which is less remote from civiliz ed society, and not less rich and fertile in the quality of its soil. It is, as all will without hesitation admit, owing to the superior means of intercourse. - It is the a lvantage of an abundant water communication which makes the face of a country lose its wild aspect, and change so rapidly beneath the magic wand o the barvest field - which peoples the wilder ness and embellishes its once savage waste with the works of art and science, and spreads knowledge and the various comforts of life so bountifully over the land. Whether these means of improvement proceed from the water which nature has taught to flow, or from the obedient streams with which the inventive genius of man has learned to supply the di-ficiency of nature—they are abke beneficia and abundantly productive of increase and presperity. And since art can thus triumpl where nature has refused her act, how un wise not to profit by the great advantage which it thus places within our reach. If w

A Lady who has arrived at the age of 29, without being so fortunate as to meet with any one to whom she could entrust het happiness, now offers herself to those Bachelors and Widowers, whose minds and dispositions are congenial to her own. As her form and features are generally considered agreeable, her mind of course has not been neglected but such parts of her education has been at and her disposition smalle. Her fortun-which she has to regret, is but small; but he circumstances are such as not to render her an absolute dependent upon the bounty of her husband. The Gentleman must be between the age of 50 and 40, agreement person, pleasant disposition, easy circumstances, and somemed of an intelligent mad. An answer addressed to C. E. H. will be attended to.

A Philosopher's Nied!—A famous cramologist, strolling through a church yard, near town, perceived a grave deger towing up the earth, among which were two or three skulls; the cramologist took up one, and after considering it a hitle time, said, "Abi, this was the skull of a Philosophie." "A very like, your honor," said the grave digger, "for I do see it is somewhat cracked."

Munchausen out Munchainened - The following story far exceeds any thing which we have ever not with in the way of historianlying. The sadies wind in which it requires too men to hold one man's hair on, is nothing lying. The saiders wind in which it required ten men to hold one man's hair on, is nothing to it; the telescope, by which not only the huttons on a man's cost at ten indes were counted, but his conversation heard, falls far their of the incredible of all incredibles.

In an a late crimax rapid.

In an imperial city, lately, a criminal was condemned to be behealed, who had a singular itching to play at nine pois. While his sentence was pronouncing, he had the temerity to offer a request to be permitted to play once more at his favourite game at the place of execution, and then he said he should submit without a murmer. As the last prayer of a dying man, his request was granted. When arrived at the solemn spot, he found every thing prepared, the pins being set up and the hould being ready. He played with no lattle earnestness, but the Sheriff at length, seeing that he showed to inclination to dessit, providely ordered the executioner to strike the fatal blow as he stooped for the how. The executioner did so, and the head dropped into the culprat's hand as he raised himself, he immediately aimed at the nine, conceiving it was the boal which he grasped. All nine falling, the head loudly exchanged, "By the gods I have won the game."

At St. Bartholemy, near La Ferta Gauche an old countryman lay on his death bed.—His son went to fetch the clergyman, and stood knocking softly at his door for three hours. Dr. Walcot, (the facetious Peter P. adar once reproved by a gentleman for the liber ties he had taken with his Sovereign, a said to have replied with as much truth a wit, "I confess there exists this difference between the king and me—the king has been a good subject to me, but I have been a bad subject to his Majesty."

When King James L ordered Lord Salishurs to give 5000L to his favorite Rochester, the Treasurer, who Lought it an extravagant present where there was so kittle ment, laid the whole such in specie on a table in the room thro' which his Majesty was to pass, who very much astonished at the sight of such heaps of mency, asked him for what purpose those vast sums were assigned. The Farl teld him, that he had his Majesty's orders to pay them to Lord Rochester. "Onto mon," and the King "suc a heap o'silver is too much far any one subject;" and ordered him but haif.

As instance of suspended animation.

A laborer who had failen from a scatholding in England, was carried, apparently dead, to medical aid, and after means had been applied authous success for his recovery, his friends carried the body home, with advice from the surgeon to precare a coffin. A more skilling arrived the body, and found heat enough to convince him that the vital spark was not field. He had at first opened a ven in the arm. to convince him that the vital spark was not fled. He had at first opened a ven in the arm, but no blood of consequence came, in drawing the scalpel over two branches of the temperal arrey, he bled products. If fore a pound had flowed be breathed, and when two pounds were drawn, he respect almost naturally. Several hours passed between the time of his fall, and that of the operation which restated a fellow being to life. It occurred to the surgeon at the time, (and which he found in another similar case,) that the blood remains in the arternal system, in a warm fluid state, after the superview become nearly empty, and what remains in them is partly. empty, and what remains in them is partly congested from losing its free schore, also, that the arteries retain the clusticity and tibliproperties a considerable time after the veins have in their little contractile power necessary to carry on the circulation.
